

Market Economies

- Resources are owned and controlled by individuals
- Economic decisions are made by individuals competing to earn profits
- Individual freedom is considered very important
- Economic decisions are made by the basic principles of supply and demand
- Profit is the motive for increasing work rather than quotas
- Also called capitalist economies
- There are many economic freedoms
- There is competition among businesses

Competition determines price which increase the quality of the product